Seating is limited! Registration prior to the course is required.

Course Description

This course is intended for dentists who want to integrate both the surgical and restorative phases of dental implants into their daily practice. Patient selection, treatment planning, critical anatomical structures when considering dental implants, and surgical placement, as well as restorative options with the Camlog implant system, are presented and discussed.

After attending this course the dentist will be able to:
• Select patients for straightforward implant surgery and restoration
• Treatment-plan the case
• Choose the appropriate surgical and restorative approach and Camlog components for the case
• Understand pre- and post-operative care

Course Content

• Why implants
• Anatomy and important structures
• Patient selection, diagnosis and treatment planning
• Surgical and restorative principles
• Introduction to surgical and restorative aspects of the Camlog system
• Surgical and restorative hands-on: every participant can place their own implant on practice and real pig mandibles

Breakfast and lunch are available on both days!
